(WJZ) Baltimore, Md.* The Baltimore skyline is being lit up in purple as the Ravens march into the playoffs with one of the best records in the NFL.

Eyewitness News talked to one business leader who is helping to light Charm City's skyline with Ravens purple.

BSL Productions located in Halethorpe, is supplying fans with purple colored gels which, make it easy to turn a normal white light into the perfect color of purple.

From City Hall to Johns Hopkins, the purple lights are popping up everywhere and the colorful tribute to the Ravens is only expected to grow as the team's first playoff game approaches.

Leaders from BSL say the gels are easy to use and can make all the difference for a team and a city hoping to make it to the Super Bowl in Miami.

Even Governor-elect Martin O'Malley has publicly encouraged Baltimore and Maryland residents to embrace the purple takeover and do all they can to support the Ravens.

The City Police Department and the Baltimore Aquarium are the latest to join the purple wave taking over the city.

With a piece of the purple gel, a little bit of tape and a light residents can also turn their homes into Ravens shrines.
